

Biography of Bashir Ahmmad ARIMA

Dr. Bashir Ahmmad Arima has completed his PhD at Kagoshima University, Japan. Currently, he is an associate professor at the Graduate School of Science and Engineering, Yamagata University, Japan. Prior to joining the current institution, he had been working as an assistant professor and a researcher at Okayama University and Kyushu University, respectively. He is a recipient of a Japanese government scholarship and a JSPS postdoctoral fellowship in Japan. His research interests include solar energy (solar hydrogen, solar cells), nanomaterials, photocatalysis, and magnetic materials. He has published more than 90 scientific journal papers, one patent and two book chapters. He had been an editorial board member of “Energy” and a guest editor of the “International Journal of Photoenergy”. He is currently serving as an advisory board member of “MIST International Journal of Science and Technology”, an editorial board member of “American Research Journal of Electrical Engineering”, and a technical committee member of “Component Parts and Materials” of the IEICE society in Japan.